Every child enrolled in your school district is a reason for you to vote in school board elections. Local school boards can impact the overall quality of your local schools, both now and in the future. You want the most qualified people in charge.

You have Everything to Gain or Lose!

Everyone - not just parents - has a stake in the success of public schools. When schools are strong and students are successful, everyone in the community benefits.

- Good schools are good business. They attract employers, strengthen the local economy, and enhance property values.
- Good schools ensure our students will be prepared to keep our nation competitive in a global economy.
- Good schools keep the American Dream alive with an opportunity for every child to receive a world-class education.
- Good schools keep the quality of life in a community high by producing citizens who pay taxes and obey the law.
- Good schools teach students from all backgrounds how to live and participate in our democracy.

Voting in a school board election is an investment in the future of all children, of your community, and of the nation.

All in Favor

Cast your vote for student success

Your local school board makes the decisions that determine how your community’s children are educated and how your tax dollars are spent. Voting for school board members is a simple but powerful way to support student success and strengthen your community.

The Power to Pursue Excellence

The decisions made by the school board affect virtually every important aspect of local schools from boundaries to bus schedules, curriculum to clubs, and funding to field trips.

The Georgia Constitution requires that an elected school board oversee each school system. Members of a local school board are to “manage and control” and to make decisions on almost every aspect of public school operations. Each school board – as a whole – serves as the governing body. Individual board members have no authority outside of the board room.

Day-to-day operations are delegated to the superintendent, however, responsibilities of a public school board include, but are not limited to, some duties that cannot be delegated, such as:

- Buying and selling school property (including the power of condemnation),
- Calling elections to authorize a Special Purpose Local Option Sales Tax (SPLOST) and bond elections for issuance of bonded debt,
- Making the policies and rules necessary to govern the school system,
- Reorganization and consolidation of schools within the district, and
- Authority to approve hiring of employees on the recommendation of the superintendent.

Qualifications for School Board Membership

In Georgia, there are actually very few qualifications for school board membership. A board member should be willing to serve, be a qualified voter, eligible to vote and reside within the school district’s political boundaries. In many instances, local laws prescribe additional qualifications such as residing within a particular ward or election district. Candidates must file an affidavit with the elections superintendent affirming that he or she has read and agreed to abide by the local board’s code of ethics and conflict of interest policy and has agreed to annually disclose compliance with those policies and the State Board of Education’s training policy.

On the other hand, there are several provisions in Georgia law that address what disqualifies an individual from serving on the school board. A person is ineligible to hold the office of school board member if the individual is:

- Not a resident of Georgia
- Under the age of 21, unless lowered to 18 by local act
- Not a resident in the school district in which the individual is seeking office for 12 months prior to the election or appointment
- Serving on the governing body of a private elementary or secondary educational institution
- Employed by the Georgia Department of Education or serving on the State Board of Education
- Employed by the board of education the individual is serving on
- The holder of another county office or on the city council if an independent district
- A holder or receiver of public money that has refused to, or failed to account for it or pay it over when asked
- Holding any office of profit or trust under the government of the United States other than that of postmaster or member in the Reserves
- A convicted felon who has not been pardoned nor has his/her rights restored
- Of unsound mind or unable to discharge the duties of the office because of advanced age or bodily infirmity
- A publisher of school books, an agent of school book publishers, or someone with a financial interest in the sale of school books
- Or, if the individual has an immediate family member (spouse, child, sibling or parent, or spouse of a child, sibling or parent whose employment began on or after January 1, 2010) sitting on the local board or serving as superintendent, principal, assistant principal, or system administrative staff.

The Right Person Makes a Difference

What qualities, skills, and experience should you look for in a school board candidate? Here are some questions to consider:

- What are the candidate’s vision and goals for high academic achievement for all students?
- Does the candidate inspire parents and other stakeholders to get things done?
- Does the candidate focus on one issue or discuss a broad range of school district concerns?
- Will the candidate enhance the mix of skills and backgrounds on the board and help represent the diversity of the community?
- Does the candidate have the commitment to do what is right for all children, even in the face of opposition?
